Hey,

And no, I didn't go back on him at all. As I recall, he didn't have an EA, which was curious, but USPS used to be pretty good. He was in the news when I first sent it up, and I heard specifically about a Congressional Investigation and his holdings in the news today. I was going to send you a note, but spaced it out, my bad.

I'll get back on it, and let you know how it goes. This one will probably end up way higher than me.

information also (b)(6) and (b)(3)

Hi Megan,

Attached is a list of some questions I had as I was going through DeJoy's report. Identifying potential USPS contractors and suppliers was probably the most difficult part as USPS appears to contract with companies from a broad array of industries. Moreover, (b)(5), (b)(6)

USPS has a document <<https://about.usps.com/suppliers/what-we-buy-who-buys-what-9-26-11.rtf>> on their website detailing the services for which they have and seek suppliers. Included in my attached notes are companies that could potentially be USPS suppliers/contractors based on this information. However, as I said, it's difficult to identify USPS suppliers because they have suppliers from across a diverse array of industries.

Looking forward to our conversation tomorrow,
Christie

Hi Christie and Lori,

Christie: I'd like you to take a look at the report for the new Postmaster General (as you probably know, there has been some media attention related to some of his holdings). He is not one of our typical filers as he is not PAS, so he does not have an ethics agreement and did not go through our nominee vetting process. For our purposes, what we're going to need to do is (b)(5) deliberative discussion articulating the process to be used by OGE to reach a decision

At this time (b)(5) deliberative discussion articulating the process to be used by OGE to reach a decision. Dave and I are also taking a look. Then you, Dave, and I can chat sometime next week and discuss our questions and next steps. I note that there are some general discussions of agency conflicts in the notes of prior Postal Service officials in FDTS (if you search by agency) that may be helpful to get you started.

Lori: Integrity is really slow today and keeps timing me out, so I have not been able to reassign the report to Christie. Would you please assign the NE report to her whenever you are able? I'm out of the office starting today around 3pm and will not be back until sometime on Monday.

Thank you both and let me know if you have questions for me.

Hey,

Sorry for the delay, I'm trying to be extra meticulous about this to make sure all of the ducks are in a row, so to speak!

Your questions were great. Attached please find my comments – you can see there is a lot of “chatter” in which I share some thoughts, but that is mostly bc I was brain dumping to you, not bc your stuff was deficient in any way ;-)

I'm finalizing my Qs now (based in part on reading your Qs and avoiding redundancies) – know this isn't technically your swim lane, but I will send those to you shortly for your situational awareness (and any input you want to offer I am happy to hear, but by no means feel like you have to do that!)

Hi Kim,

I agree – I think it makes sense to send one set of questions that address our overlapping, mutual conflicts-related concerns. To that end, I can send you my questions for the agency and you can edit and add any additional questions that you may have?

Attached is a rough draft of my questions. I've incorporated the questions that you highlighted as mutual concerns in your working document. Please feel free to rephrase/edit/add questions as you see fit. (Included in my draft of questions is a list of companies that I've identified as potential USPS suppliers. This was just a list that I compiled to help me with my review, and not something we need to include in our follow ups.)

Let me know what you think after you've had a chance to review. Also happy to go about coordinating this in a different way if you had other thoughts!

Thanks,

Hi Christie,

I know that you're putting together your Qs for the agency re the NE report; I'm working on my CD questions right now too. I think it makes sense to avoid redundancies in our questioning w/rt various assets and conflicts, so we should definitely coordinate on that (my initial instinct is that it makes sense for (b)(5) deliberative discussion articulating the process to be used by OGE to reach a decision

Where do you stand on your Qs? I'm still working on mine (read: literally haven't even done spell check on the attached doc, much less reviewed for quality purposes), but for your reference, my working document is attached. (The yellow highlights are areas where I suspect we may have overlapping interests and that I should avoid redundancy...)

Let me know your thoughts re coordination on this!

Sounds good. To give you full visibility, I'll keep my work in progress notes in the J drive folder (b)(5) - internal agency network (Everybody has their own approach w/ CDs (like with any other assignment!), but as you can see from the current draft, what I do is go through and start my notes based on the info I recd in the initial CD submission, and then highlight for my own reference the areas that I need to explore more with the agency. (Lest my swiss cheese brain forget! ☺)

To the extent you want a wee baby teaching moment w/rt the CD - One issue that is relevant to this CD is (b) (5)

(b)(5), (6)

(b) (5)

. You saw that I included some questions about that in my draft to the agency - really, the devil is in the details, so we'll see where that goes! For some general background for you, I've attached some personal notes I have from a high-profile CD I worked on earlier this year (first attachment), and also put together a quick and dirty Word document with some excerpts from germane AIMS questions (second attachment) – it is up to you how much of a glutton for punishment you want to be on this, but figured I would share this just as background/to help inform!

Good morning, Natalie,
I hope you had a nice weekend!
I'm writing to touch base regarding OGE's questions on the DeJoy CD request. Could you please let me know the status?
Thank you,
Kim

Hi Natalie,

I hope you are well. I am the OGE reviewer assigned to the Louis DeJoy CD request – I have reviewed the information USPS provided, and have the following initial questions:

(b)(5) deliberative and pre-decisional and some information also (b)(6)

Thank you in advance for your input – I look forward to working with you!

Kim
